What is a coherent sentence?

A sentence whose meaning the reader can easily understand.

Note: lack of vocabulary and complexity of topic do not affect coherency- that is a "reader problem", not a "writer problem".

Why are coherent sentences important?

1) Readers will become confused, then frustrated, if they have to re-read your sentences in order to make sense of them. Remember, they are already having to make sense of the information you are giving them; so, being forced to make sense of the sentences is extra work.

2) Coherent sentences are usually shorter, which makes them easier to understand. Also, readers can focus on the ideas rather than the words in a coherent sentence.

What causes incoherent sentences?

There are many causes. A few include...

Word Choice: every word has a specific meaning.

Transitions are great for coherency, when they're used correctly.

e.g.

- (a) Steve will only go to the park, but his friend will go to the zoo.
- (b) Steve will go to the park while his friend will only go to the zoo.
- (c) Steve will only go to the park, but his friend will only go to the zoo.
- (d) Steve will only go to the park while his friend will go to the zoo.

Transitions: whether it's a word, phrase, or clause, you must lead the reader to each point in your writing.

e.g.

- (a) I recently saw a movie about firefighters in a small town. But so many movies today have predictable plots!
- (b) I recently saw a movie about firefighters in a small town. The action scenes were very well-done and the acting was fine. But this movie, like so many movies today, has a predictable plot!
- (c) I recently saw a movie about firefighters in a small town. The action scenes were very well-done and the acting was fine. So many movies today have predictable plots!

Clauses: we like to read information in a logical order.

e.g.

- (a) Being a student is more and more time consuming thanks to the testing requirements and pressure on educators.
- (b) Being a student, thanks to the testing requirements and pressure on educators, is more and more time consuming.
- (c) Being a student is, thanks to the testing requirements and pressure on educators, more and more time consuming.
- (d) Being a student is more and more, thanks to the testing requirements and pressure on educators, time consuming.

Negatives: not just words like "no"...

e.g.

- (a) Not until I read the study about the great lack of non-licensed drivers was I able to say for the certain that we did not have enough of them.
- (b) I was certain we did not have enough drivers with licenses after I read the study.
- (c) After I read the study about the great lack of non-licensed drivers, I was able to say for the certain that we did not have enough of them.

Pronouns: the reader must be certain about them.

e.g.

(a) Mary enjoys working with children; she will probably do that.

(b) Mary enjoys working with children; she will probably open a daycare one day.

(c) Mary enjoys working with children; she will probably do that in the future.

Nouns: don't turn them into verbs or use them in strings

e.g.

(a) The documentary showed the universal healthcare business model's troubled financial plan.

(b) There was a showing of the universal healthcare business model's troubled financial plan.

(c) The documentary showed that universal healthcare has a business model that is financially troubled.

Tips & Hints

- 1) Always demand specifics (especially with pronouns). Never assume.
- 2) Don't separate things that belong together (subject/verb, adjective/noun, adverb/verb).
- 3) Clauses need to be placed at beginning or end of sentence, if at all possible.
- 4) Favor sentences that use less negatives and less commas.
- 5) The more complex the sentence sounds, the less likely it is to be correct.

1) Which of the following sentences is most clearly written?

- (a) Of the team's players, six are local high school students.
- (b) Six of the team's players are local high school students.
- (c) On the team, six players are from local high schools.
- (d) From local high schools, six players are on the team.

Sentence Order

SPI 3003.3.2 Choose the most effective order of sentences in a paragraph.

NEXT

What is sentence order?

When sentences are grouped together in a paragraph, they are all related by the main idea, which is located in the topic sentence (usually the first or second sentence of the paragraph).

When you're taking a test, you will see this question asked in one of two ways: either at the end of a long passage of reading (the sentences will be numbered and you may notice as you read that something doesn't seem right) or as a separate question with a unique paragraph (see below).

If the question is from a unique paragraph, you have to assume that you have all the information you need to answer the question. That is, there isn't an imaginary paragraph before it that would make more than one possible order correct.

Which of the following paragraphs has the sentences in the most logical order?

e.g. The mayor said the city had bounced back from the depths of the recent recession. Also, he said the state would post revenues that are higher than their previous peak during the 2006-07 budget year. However, he said an unemployment rate higher than the national average is evidence that more needs to be done.

e.g. However, he said an unemployment rate higher than the national average is evidence that more needs to be done. Also, he said the state would post revenues that are higher than their previous peak during the 2006-07 budget year. The mayor said the city had bounced back from the depths of the recent recession.

Answer

Justification

Determining sentence order

When you first read the paragraph, are statements made that confused you because you don't know what they're talking about?

e.g.

(1) The crews had already worked on Thursday to clean up and were expected to return on Friday to the site. (2) The pipelines carried diesel fuel, gasoline and electrical lines down to feed service tanks for boats at the yacht club. (3) Emergency crews are estimating it may take a couple of days to clean up a fuel spill near Big Hill Lake after a tree fell on pipelines. (4) It is estimated that under 50 gallons leaked from the gasoline pipeline and about 400 to 600 gallons leaked from the diesel pipeline.

- a. What is the correct order of sentences? [REDACTED]
- b. What information was out of order to indicate that something was wrong.

When you read a paragraph, you can sometimes use transitions to figure out the best order.

(1) As the governor prepares to sign it, the sponsor of the bill said most other employees who have state-issued licenses are already subject to losing those licenses for failure to pay student loans and it is appropriate to add professionals to the list. (2) Having passed the House, the bill goes to Gov. Bill Haslam for his signature. (3) That final approval was won only after an hour-long debate in the House. (4) Professionals who default on their student loans could lose the right to practice their professions under legislation winning final approval in the state House on Thursday.

- a. What is the correct order of sentences? [REDACTED]
- b. How did transitions help you? Did they also confuse you?

Practice: Choose the correct order for the sentences below.

(1) As an extra precaution, one person at each store must be a certified secondhand store operator and pay a $50 fee and have a background check done through the local police department. (2) Operators must also get specific information from individuals from whom they buy property and must photograph all jewelry and gold, precious metals and coins they buy. (3) Any stolen merchandise that appears in the database will be flagged and seized by the police. (4) This database will be monitored by a police task force. (5) A new ordinance stipulates that secondhand store personnel must hold re-sell items for 30 days, as well as upload information about the item to a database.

What is Ironic?

- Irony is the opposite of what is expected, and generally refers to situational irony. There are many kinds of irony, but literature is generally concerned with three:
- situational irony occurs when the result is the opposite of what is expected based on the initial circumstances
- verbal irony occurs when what is said the opposite of what the speaker actually means (if it is the opposite of what the listener expected, it is situational irony)
- dramatic irony occurs when the reader/viewer knows something that a character does not know

What is Ironic?

- Irony is the opposite of what is expected, and generally refers to situational irony. There are many kinds of irony, but literature is generally concerned with three:
- situational irony Oedipus Rex, when Oedipus flees his home to avoid killing his father and marrying his mother-only to do precisely that because of his actions
- verbal irony: Julius Caesar, when Marc Antony gives a speech in which he repeatedly says that Brutus is a good man, yet plainly does not believe so
- dramatic irony: The Scarlet Letter, when the reader knows that Chillingworth is Hester's husband, but Dimmesdale does not

Examples of Irony?

Below are some examples of irony from the news... sort of. Some of these are coincidences or aren't ironic in the true sense of the word. Which is which?

1. The average cost of rehabilitating a seal after the Exxon Valdez oil spill in Alaska was $80,000. At a special ceremony, two of the most expensively saved animals were released back into the wild amid cheers and applause from onlookers. A minute later they were both eaten by a killer whale.
2. A psychology student in New York rented out her spare room to a carpenter in order to nag him constantly and study his reactions. After weeks of needling, he snapped and beat her repeatedly with an axe, leaving her mentally retarded.
3. In 1992, Frank Perkins of Los Angeles made an attempt on the world flagpole-sitting record. Suffering from the flu, he came down eight hours short of the 400-day record, to find that his sponsor had gone bankrupt, his girlfriend had left him and his phone and electricity had been cut off.
4. A woman came home to find her husband in the kitchen, shaking frantically with what looked like a wire running from his waist towards the electric kettle. Intending to jolt him away from the deadly current, she whacked him with a handy plank of wood by the back door, breaking his arm in two places. Till that moment he had been happily listening to his Walkman.
5. Two animal rights activists were protesting the cruelty of sending pigs to a slaughterhouse in Bonn. Suddenly the pigs, all two thousand of them, escaped through a broken fence and stampeded, trampling the two hapless protesters to death.
6. Iraqi terrorist Khay Rahnajet didn't pay enough postage on a letter bomb. It came back with "return to sender" stamped on it. Forgetting it was the bomb, he opened it and was blown to bits.

As he defeated—dying—
On whose forbidden ear
The distant strains of triumph
Burst agonized and clear.
